

Jenny Evans Sings George Gershwin

Jenny Evans has been a fan of composer George Gershwin for a long time. "For me he's a genius who one of the most creative composers of the last century". When he died in 1937 Gershwin's music had made him a celebrity not only in on Broadway and in Hollywood, but also in concert halls in America and in Europe. His songs in the foundations of the Great American Song Book, Summertime, I Got Rhythm, But Not For Me, Lady Be Good, Fascinatin' Rhythm, 'S Wonderful, The Man I Love, A Foggy Day are the epitome of American music. His symphonies An American in Paris and Rhapsody in Blue as well the opera Porgy and Bess are mainstay of the classical repertoire. "Few singers of her generation know how to present standards so convincingly and with such variety. Not only the notes, also the atmosphere of each song are captured in a way that makes you want to listen, once again, to songs you thought had been done to death ". Mátyás Kiss, JazzZeitung
